Re: MUR 5659

Dear Mr. Philbert:

The undersigned represent the Democratic Party of Hawaii and Yuriko Sugimura, as Treasurer ("DPH"), in the above-referenced MUR. This matter has been generated in response to an audit conducted by the Commission of the activities of the DPH during the 2002 election cycle. The Commission has found reason to believe that the DPH has violated the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended, as follows: 1) the Party violated 2 U.S.C. § 441b(a) by misdepositing two donations totaling $30,000 from prohibited sources into its federal account; 2) the Party violated 2 U.S.C. § 441a(f) by misdepositing $36,000 in excessive contributions into its federal account and 3) the Party violated 2 U.S.C. § 434(b)(4)(H)(v) by failing to report $155,125 in disbursements that the Commission has presumed to be allocable expenses.

BACKGROUND

This matter was generated as a result of Commission audit of DPH's financial records in connection with the 2002 election cycle. The facts of this matter relating to the alleged violations can only be understood in context of the circumstances surrounding the 2002 elections in the state of Hawaii. As described below, it is clear that the DPH's efforts undertaken by its "coordinated campaign" were solely in connection with non-federal elections.

In 2002, the state of Hawaii had only two federal elections, two seats for the United States House of Representatives. The two house seats were occupied by long time Democratic incumbents Neil Abercrombie and Patsy Mink. In addition to prior stints in the House of Representatives, each had continuously represented Hawaii in the House of Representatives since 1991. In 2000, each had won their election handily, with Congressman Abercrombie winning his election by a 69%-29% margin, and Congresswoman Mink winning by a 62%-36% margin. In 2000, Al Gore easily won Hawaii by a 56%-37% margin and Senator Daniel Akaka was easily re-elected by a 73%-25% margin. Each member was expected to easily win their nomination and general election contests in 2002 (See "Unchallenged Democrats stoking campaign coffers," Honolulu Advertiser, p. 1A, April 22, 2002, attached as Exhibit A).

By contrast, the non-federal elections in Hawaii were highly contested in 2002. The Democrats were faced with an open seat for Governor against a candidate. Linda Lingle, who had only lost by one percentage point in the prior gubernatorial election, was again the candidate for Governor for the Republicans. The Democrats, on the other hand, had a divisive primary campaign and finally, on September 21, 2002, nominated Lieutenant Governor Mazie Hirono as its candidate. In addition, the Republican Party had made serious gains in the 2000 state legislative elections and were primed to do so again in 2002. It was against this backdrop that the DPH established a "coordinated campaign" to help elect Mazie Hirono for Governor, and to support other non-federal candidates at all levels. Based upon the fact that both members of Congress were in non-competitive races, there was no consideration of inclusion of either candidate in the plans of the coordinated campaign. Ultimately, it was determined that the coordinated campaign would be used exclusively to influence non-federal elections (See Declaration of Andy Winer, attached as Exhibit B). Throughout the gubernatorial campaign, the Republican candidate held a sizable lead in the polls. Through the concerted efforts of the Coordinated Campaign's advertising that opposed Lingle the election drew into a virtual dead heat. The DPH spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on candidate specific advertising in the campaign for governor, and also spent heavily on candidate specific mailings for its state legislative candidates. Republican gubernatorial candidate Linda Lingle ultimately won the gubernatorial race by a 52%-47% margin, but the Democrats gained four seats in the Hawaii House and lost 2 seats in the Hawaii Senate.

In another significant development, Congresswoman Patsy Mink fell seriously ill in early September 2002 and died on September 27, 2002, one week after she had been easily re-nominated as the party's congressional candidate. Although the DPH attempted to have Congresswoman Mink replaced on the ballot, Hawaii courts ruled that her name must remain on the ballot and a special election to replace her was scheduled for later in November 2002, contingent on Mink receiving a majority of the vote in the 2002 general election. Notwithstanding Congresswoman Mink's death, the Republican candidate, Bob McDermott, did not receive any support from the Hawaii Republican Party and was not considered a threat to receive a majority of the vote in November. At the request of the Mink family, the DPH did not undertake any campaign activity on behalf of Congresswoman Mink. Ultimately, despite the lack of any active campaign by her campaign committee or the DPH, Congresswoman Mink was handily reelected by a 56%-40% margin.

Thus, the DPH's coordinated campaign had no active campaign for, or made direct expenditures on behalf of any federal candidate during the 2002 campaign cycle. Its focus was exclusively on its gubernatorial and other non-federal elections and its payment from non-federal funds of most of its campaign expenses was appropriate and proper.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> The audit report did not cite any evidence that DPH expended funds for advertising that named a federal candidate or could be considered generic advertising. See section 3 infra. Because DPH's sole focus was on state and local elections, it is doubtful that such advertising existed. DPH committee is still trying to determine conclusively whether any generic advertising actually ran. In any event, even if such advertising was run, it is believed that the total cost of such advertising did not exceed $20,000. Of course, the

With respect to the financial activities of the DPH, according to the Commission's Audit report, the non-federal share of allocable expenses for the DPH was $603,431. However, the DPH transferred only $275,636 to the federal account. This led to an under-transfer of $327,795 of potential federal funds by the DPH from its non-federal accounts to its federal account. DPH's preoccupation with the election of a democratic governor and state legislature explains the unusual under transfer of non-federal funds to its federal account. This significant under-transfer clearly reflects the non-federal nature and focus of the DPH's activities during the 2002 election cycle.

COMMISSION AUDIT

1) Apparent Misdeposits of Union Contributions

Finding 1 of the Commission's Audit Report determined that the DPH had received $30,000 from the non-federal accounts of two political action committees. In response, the DPH had explained that the contributions had been inadvertently misdeposited into its federal account and agreed to include these on its debt schedule until such time that it had funds to correct the misdeposit. The DPH made transfers in two installments to correct the misdeposit. First, on September 24, 2004, the DPH transferred $20,000 from its federal account to its non-federal account. Second, on September 29, 2004 the DPH transferred $10,000 from its federal account to its non-federal account. In addition to these mitigating steps, it should be noted that DPH promptly disclosed the receipt of these funds, albeit in the wrong account, and the gross undertransfer of non-federal funds through the allocation process further mitigated any potential problems caused by these misdeposits. Thus, there was nothing sinister about this error, which involves a relatively small amount of funds.

2) Apparent Acceptance of Excessive Contributions

Finding 2 of the Commission's Audit Report determined that the DPH had accepted $51,000 in excessive contributions. Of that amount, the DPH was able to demonstrate that $5,000 of those contributions was not excessive and that it had already refunded $20,000 of the remaining excessive contributions. The DPH agreed to include an additional $26,000 as debt on its reports and made refund payments to all contributors by November 24, 2004. The DPH contends that each of these misdeposits was inadvertent. As stated in our discussion above, the Commission should also note the mitigating effect of the failure to transfer non-federal funds for allocable expenses during the 2002 election cycle. Accordingly, any description of this violation should be described as a misdeposit.

decision to run generic advertising would have been based solely upon non-federal considerations and such advertisements would not have been intended to influence any federal election.

3) Apparent Misreporting of Allocable Expenses

The Audit Division reviewed the activities of the DPH's non-federal account and identified $164,640 in expenditures for television and radio production, television advertising, research, postage and consulting that appeared to lack documentation sufficient for the Audit staff to conclusively determine that such activities were in connection with non-federal elections. This amount reflects a small portion of the actual $889,315 in non-federal disbursements apparently reviewed by the Audit Division. With respect to the $164,640, the Audit Division identified 54 expenditures that they could not properly document as being entirely in connection with non-federal elections. Although DPH asserted that the non-federal expenditures were, in fact, non-federal in nature, it conceded that it may not be able to locate the documentation necessary to conclusively prove this. All other documentation provided by the DPH to the auditors supports their contention that the Coordinated Campaign functioned as a non-federal project of the DPH. In order to comply with the Commission's recommendations, which the DPH believed it was legally required to do, DPH filed amended reports with the Commission to show the 54 expenditures as allocable expenditures as memo entries.

First, neither the Act or Commission's regulations grant the Audit Division the ability to review the non-federal spending of a political committee. Second, even if it did, the Commission's own recordkeeping requirements do not require that even federal accounts of political committees maintain copies of advertisements or other materials to demonstrate the nature of such activities. To be sure, the Act and Commission regulations merely require a committee to maintain either a cancelled check or invoice for each federal disbursement it makes. 11 C.F.R. § 102.9(b). Neither the Act, nor the Commission's regulations impose any recordkeeping or reporting requirements on a political committee's non-federal account. Certainly, nothing in the Act or committee's regulations require a party committee to retain copies of advertisements or mailings to prove that its non-federal activities are not allocable or federal in nature.

Ultimately, even if these disbursements were made from a federal account, no provision in the Act or Commission regulation requires that the committee produce copies of advertisements or mailings to the Commission. Thus, in this instance, the Audit Division has, on its own accord, forced the DPH to disprove the Audit Division's presumption that non-federal expenses should, in some way, be paid for with a portion of federal funds and be disclosed on the DPH's federal reports merely because it could not locate copies of ads and mailings. The Audit Division's effort to shift to the DPH the burden of showing that expenses were non-federal, when the Commission has absolutely no indication or evidence to the contrary, has no basis in the Act or Commission's regulations.

As explained above, the DPH's coordinated campaign activities were focused solely on non-federal elections, and in no way were designed to influence any federal elections. In fact, in most cases, a comparison of the expenditures noted by the Commission as potentially allocable, when compared to the non-federal reports filed with the state of Hawaii by the DPH reflect the specific non-federal purpose of these activities (A copy of the applicable reports are attached as Exhibit C).

In sum, the audit report only supports allegations that two deposits totaling $30,000 from prohibited sources were inadvertently misdeposited, and $36,000 in excessive contributions was accepted. In mitigation, all of these funds were reported and none of these funds were used to influence a federal election.

HEADLINE: Unchallenged Democrats stoking campaign coffers

BYLINE: Roth Susan, Advertiser Washington Bureau

BODY:

By Susan Roth, ADVERTISER WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON - Hawaii Democrats Neil Abercrombie and Patsy Mink don't have much in the way of political challenges to re-election this year, but they have been raising as much money as ever.

Abercrombie in particular is building his typically robust campaign chest, raising more than $400,000 last year. He said he needs the money to ward off potential challenges, although the six-time congressman for once has no challengers in sight.

"If you don't raise money, people assume that you think you don't have to, and that you're not taking the job seriously," said Abercrombie, who represents urban Honolulu. "That encourages people to run. I always operate on the basis that I'll have a credible opponent. You have to be prepared monetarily and issue-wise. You've got to have a war chest. It's indicative of your ability to conduct a campaign."

In the 1999-2000 election cycle, the congressman raised more than $800,000 to beat Republican Philip Meyers. He is on track to raise the same amount in the current cycle.

Last year, Abercrombie raised more than $411,000, according to the Federal Election Commission. In the first three months of 2002, he raised an additional $88,000 and had $342,000 on hand as of March 31.

Mink raised nearly $350,000 in the 1999-2000 election cycle. In 2001, she raised about $128,000, according to the FEC. In the first quarter of this year, Mink raised $11,000. She had $178,500 in cash on hand March 31.

State Rep. Bob McDermott, R-32nd ('Aiea, Salt Lake, Aliamanu), a legislator known for his efforts to try to repair crumbling public schools in his district, has announced plans to challenge Mink, but complained about a lack of support from the Hawaii Republican Party.

Mink, who represents the Neighbor Islands and part of Oahu, also will seek a seventh consecutive term in Congress and 14th term overall. She said she takes every challenge seriously and figures she needs the same amount of money for this election as in 2000, when she easily beat former National Football League player Russ Francis, who had raised more than $200,000.

Even if no one chooses to run against Abercrombie this year, the congressman said he won't give away much of his money to help expected gubernatorial candidate Jeremy Harris or any other Democrats, in keeping with past practice. Both he and Mink said they feel no pressure from the Hawaii Democratic Party to donate money to other candidates.

"They know how poor we are," Mink said. "They don't have a problem raising money. They have ample assets."

"All you can do is account for yourself," Abercrombie said. "I'll do anything to be of assistance to others, and we'll campaign with them. But that doesn't mean giving people money, as if you can do that for everyone. I don't have that kind of money. But that doesn't mean you can't help other people raise money."

Unchallenged Democrats stoking campaign coffers The Honolulu Advertiser

Federal candidates can give money they raise to both individual state candidates and state political parties. Bob Wadata, executive director of the Hawaii Campaign Spending Commission, said Abercrombie and Mink can give any state candidate as much as $4,000 per election, and can give the Hawaii Democratic Party as much as $25,000 per election cycle.

Most of the money the two lawmakers raise goes into advertising or gets plowed back into fund-raisers.

For instance, Abercrombie spent more than $75,000 last year on consulting fees associated with fund raising. He spent more than $34,000 on catering for fund-raisers, most of it at the Hilton Hawaiian Village and some at Padovanni's Bistro.

An additional $2,600 went toward music and entertainment for fund-raisers and $2,400 went for flowers and leis. Abercrombie, who is known for giving away Hawaiian candy, also bought $1,500 worth from Hawaiian Host Inc. for promotions.

Mink, meanwhile, spent most of her $35,000 in operating expenses in 2001 on food, entertainment, invitations and liability insurance for fund-raisers.

"Sometimes it costs more money to put them on than you get," Mink acknowledged with a laugh. That's because Hawaiian campaigns don't usually charge hundreds of dollars a plate, as on the Mainland, while attendees expect a good meal and entertainment.

"But the point of fund-raisers is to gather your supporters together and rev people up, so it has value," Mink said.

DECLARATION OF ANDREW WINER

1. From May 2002 through November 2002 I was the Chair of the Hawaii Democratic Party's Coordinated Campaign" ("Coordinated Campaign") a project of the Democratic Party of Hawaii ("DPH"). I left the employment of the DPH immediately after the 2002 general election. I make this Declaration in support of the Response filed on behalf of the DPH in the above-referenced MUR.

2. As Chair of the Coordinated Campaign I was responsible for implementing the DPH's campaign on behalf of its Democratic candidates in connection with the November 2002 general election. I oversaw the budget and was involved in all aspects of implementing the campaign.

3. In 2002, the Coordinated Campaign focused almost exclusively on two areas: (1) the gubernatorial election; and (2) state legislative races with a particular focus on the state house. Throughout the coordinated campaign, all staff, consultants and volunteers worked exclusively on the gubernatorial and state legislative races. For all intents and purposes, the Coordinated Campaign was a non-federal project of the DPH.

4. Although there were two federal elections in Hawaii in 2002, neither election was deemed competitive and the Coordinated Campaign had no intention of utilizing any resources in connection with those elections. In each election, a Democratic incumbent (Representatives Neil Abercrombie and Patsy Mink) was considered safe and were expected to be re-elected easily against weak opposition.

5. In contrast, the DPH expected a divisive primary election for its nomination for its candidate for Governor and a difficult election against a strong Republican rival. In the state legislature, the DPH was concerned about losses in the 2000 legislative races and was determined to protect its majorities in each legislative chamber.

6. In September 2002, Representative Mink fell gravely ill and she passed away at the end of September 2002, shortly after the Democratic primary election. After her death, the DPH sought to have Representative Mink replaced on the ballot. However, a court ruled that Representative Mink must remain on the ballot and a special election was scheduled to replace Representative Mink subsequent to the 2002 general election.

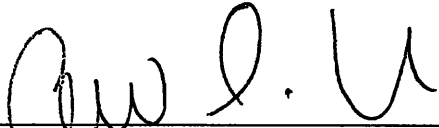

7. At the request of Representative Mink's family, all active campaigning undertaken by the Mink campaign ceased. Further, the Mink family requested that the DPH not do any active campaigning on behalf of Representative Mink. Accordingly, to the best of my recollection, neither the DPH nor the coordinated campaign engaged in any active campaigning on behalf of Representative Mink.

8. In addition to not undertaking any active campaigning for Representative Mink, Representative Abercrombie's election was not competitive. Accordingly, all campaigning in the 2002 general election was focused exclusively on the gubernatorial and state legislative races.

I declare under penalties of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my present knowledge, information and belief.

Dated this <sup>14th</sup> day of October, 2005.
